

LANSBURGH & BRO.

THE CROWDS!

THE CROWDS!

They came—they saw—they bought. Lansburgh told them there would be Wash Fabrics up to 37½c. a yard for 11c., and they knew it was so.

SOME CAME IN CARRIAGES—OTHERS CAME ON BICYCLES—MOST OF THEM CAME ON FOOT—THE CARS WERE CROWDED WITH SHOPPERS TO THAT WONDERFUL SALE OF WASH FABRICS.

NEVER IN THE HISTORY OF OUR STORE WERE THE CROWDS SO EAGER TO PURCHASE—AND CAN YOU BLAME THEM? THINK OF IT—ABERDEEN SUITINGS, FIGURED DIMITIES, FIGURED Piques, STRIPED AND FIGURED LAWNS, BENGAL SUITINGS—GOODS WORTH UP TO 87½c. TO IMPORT—FOR—

The Pick is Yours.

Buy any piece you want, but buy it quickly—indecision means loss of possession—with the thousands who attend this sale, it means here today and gone tomorrow, though the amount of goods purchased by us amounted in a round sum to

---$38,000.---

YET WITH IT ALL THERE IS A PICK.

YOU CAN HAVE YOURS. The sales are wide, the room devoted to these (our Dress Goods Room) is large. The light perfect—the service excellent. All can be waited on intelligently. But why not come when the jostling is least liable, early in the morning? A look is all that is necessary.

You'll buy quick enough.

We Want You

to draw the quality line as sharply as possible—We will meet it—Worth is the uppermost consideration with us—Our capital and the immense quantities we sell stunt prices—We don't have to sacrifice value to be lowest.

We want you to have the best—and you shall pay the least for it.

A "Dollar a Head"— for Derbys and Fedoras—makers' models. They've made money out of them. Sold thousands and thousands of dozens by these samples. They're through with them—and we've got 'em here for you—

$3, $2.50 and $2 Derbys for $1.
$3, $2.50 and $2 Fedoras for $1.
The latest shapes and shades.

A dollar apiece didn't trim them.

Half gone with today's crowd.

$1.25 Worth of Shirt-- for 98c.

That's the way we measure out quality. Easy enough to match the price—but not the worth.

The body's white mauling—the bosom is Garner Percale. The making was done by our best shirt man. A pair of cuffs—the combination kind—in pattern to match the bosom—is part of your 98c. worth. You'll find the department stores offering the price—but they are stingy with their proportions—weak with their colors—mistaken in their fitting. If we can get you to try one of ours on you'll want a half dozen at least.

Boys' Spring Coats-- $5, $6 and $8 grades for $2.50. We carried them over from last season—just a few of a size—so we could answer any emergency calls that might come. We could sandwich them in with this season's—but that wouldn't be Saks-like.

Quality is all right—style is in fashion—but they are a season old, and that settles the price—clipped to $2.50. Sizes: 4 to 12 years. Not over 20 Coats.

Still Working on Them.

Owing to the immense number of lists received in the Word-building Contest which closed Saturday night—Mr. L. E. Fitch—superintendent of the Fourth Division, Public Schools and assistants—kindly acting as a committee to examine the lists—are unable to announce the name of the successful competitor in today's papers. They are, however, pushing with all possible speed, and you shall have the news the moment it comes. In the meantime put your wits to work and think us out a plan for the next contest. We offer a Boys' Cresent '95 or P. B. Junior Bicycle for the best idea.

A DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Two Young People Drowned in Eastern Branch.

Generally Believed to Have Been an Accident—The Bodies Recovered.—Both Were Well Known.

A sad affair, by which two young people of Anacostia, Miss Katie Canter and Irving Lysles, lost their lives by drowning, occurred yesterday afternoon in the Eastern branch of the Potomac river, opposite Buzzard's Point. Both victims were well known in Anacostia, where both were members of the choir of Emmanuel Protestant Episcopal Church, and both were universally popular.

Humors of a probable suicide on the part of each have been freely circulated in Anacostia, but careful investigation failed to substantiate such a theory, and there are no grounds for believing that the dreadful affair was other than an accident. Miss Canter and young Lysles occupied their usual places in the choir of Emmanuel Church yesterday morning, and after the conclusion of the church services agreed to take a boat ride on the river in the afternoon. Accordingly, between 1:30 and 2 o'clock they left Miss Canter's home on Fillmore street near Jefferson, where she resided with her father and stepmother, her own mother being dead, and went to the boat house, foot of 11th street, Southeast Washington, where they hired a flat-bottomed boat. Lysles remarked to Miss Canter, when engaging the boat, that he preferred one of that sort, as he did not want one that would easily turn over. No attention was paid to the remark, except to comply with the request, as inexperienced persons who go boating often select similar boats.

On the way to the boat house the young couple met some friends to whom they spoke, and Lysles and Miss Canter both seemed to be in the best of spirits. Seating themselves in the boat, the Mr. and Mrs. Lysles, who were accompanied by Miss Canter, rowed a long distance down the river. On their way back and when nearly opposite Buzzard's Point, the unfortunate young people were seen to rise in the boat suddenly, and almost immediately both went into the river.

An Eye Witness.

So far as is known, James S. Martin, a young man who has lived his entire life in Anacostia, and knew Miss Canter and Lysles well, was the only witness of the tragedy. Martin had also been down the river in a boat and was returning to Anacostia, and when about 200 yards distant, saw the movement which preceded the fall into the river of the young couple.

Martin hurried to the subscription at Anacostia, where he told Sergt. Kerby and others that as soon as he saw Miss Canter and Lysles leave the boat he hastened to the scene. Miss Canter did not, he said, come to the surface at all, but Lysles rose twice, and once seemed to be struggling. Even then Martin was too far away to render Lysles any assistance, and catching the boat, which was about to float away, toward it French's boat, which he had belonged. There it was found to contain Miss Canter's hat and parasol, which were properly taken care of.

One Body Found.

Sergt. Kerby at once reported the facts to Lieut. McCathran, at the fifth precinct station house, and as quickly as possible the police boat Joe Blackburn, with Harbor Master Sutton in charge, proceeded to the place where it was supposed the bodies were. After several hours' search that of Miss Canter was found, a short distance from where she went down, and brought to the surface, and then taken on board the vessel. The boat conveyed the remains to the 7th street wharf, where Coroner Hammett was communicated with, and a little later were carried by an undertaker to Miss Canter's late home.

The news of the drowning spread through Anacostia like wild fire, and by the time Miss Canter's body reached her father's house a large crowd of people had gathered at the place. Among them were a number of ladies who were personally acquainted with the dead girl, and they were so affected by the sight of the dripping garments as to shed tears. With a feeling of pride in the just men whom Washington possesses as her base ball magnates, I cheerfully paid 50 cents for a seat no better than those that were sold ahead of me for 25 cents, and finally found a seat on the second row, in what would ordinarily have been a good position. After a season of self-congratulation that I, being an early bird, had caught a worm, I was chagrined to find that the same seat had been taken by a stranger. With regard to the 25-cent seats had not been carried out on the more expensive side of the field, and that after every seat had been taken 50-cent seats were sold, which abundance that the people came crowding into the field, filling the ground in front of the 50-cent seats. There was a standing until, when play was begun, was utterly impossible for those on the lower rows to see anything without standing up. This, of course, necessitated the police order to those above my position, and so it went, until the greed of the management, the inefficiency of the police, who could have prevented the nuisance if they had tried, and the thoughtlessness of the people themselves, produced the result of every man who had paid half a dollar for a seat no better than those that were sold ahead of me for 25 cents, and finally found a seat on the second row, in what would ordinarily have been a good position. With regard to the 25-cent seats had not been carried out on the more expensive side of the field, and that after every seat had been taken 50-cent seats were sold, which abundance that the people came crowding into the field, filling the ground in front of the 50-cent seats. There was a standing until, when play was begun, was utterly impossible for those on the lower rows to see anything without standing up. This, of course, necessitated the police order to those above my position, and so it went, until the greed of the management, the inefficiency of the police, who could have prevented the nuisance if they had tried, and the thoughtlessness of the people themselves, produced the result of every man who had paid half a dollar for a seat no better than those that were sold ahead of me for 25 cents, and finally found a seat on the second row, in what would ordinarily have been a good position. After a season of self-congratulation that I, being an early bird, had caught a worm, I was chagrined to find that the same seat had been taken by a stranger.
